Once again . . .

The Society take pleasure in presenting "Without the Prince". To those who have seen our first performance we trust that you will enjoy the seasonal atmosphere introduced and to others who see it for the first time may we explain that the play is based on life as it may be seen in any country village (where there is an Amateur Dramatic Society) The characters are confronted with all the problems, joys and anxieties which are to be found in our own daily lives—here we see all the humour and tragedy with which life abounds.
