This evening we have all met to celebrate the founding over one hundred years ago of the Cowbridge Grammar School Old Boys Association.

We all have memories, whether good or bad, of the time we spent at 'The College' - memories which stretch back thirty, forty, fifty, sixty even seventy years.

We come from many varied backgrounds yet something has drawn us here this evening to 'Honour the memory of a vanished place and situation!'

We would all surely agree that our time at Cowbridge Grammar School equipped us for our journey in life and gave us opportunities denied to many others.

As we enjoy this special Centenary Reunion (and hopefully many more in the future) let us not forget all those who have gone before and are, sadly, no longer with us but whose vision, commitment, loyalty, dedication and service made this evening possible.
