

Coracle Stories

Protected Geographical Indication

The PGI quality mark means a product coming from a specific place, has a quality, because it has come from the environment.

The Coracle Association have worked hard to get PGI approved with the help of National Resources Wales and support of the Welsh Government.

These tags are attached to the fish when caught.

All the fish that are caught by the coracle fishermen are tagged.

It means that people know exactly how many have been caught.

The fishermen cannot sell a fish without a tag.

It is the most accurate way to count the fish

The coraclers participate in any projects such The Celtic Sea Trout Project collating information in an effort to find why there is an apparent decline in Sea Trout numbers.
