4th March 1911 ‘The Herald’

The death occurred in a London nursing home, after a long illness, of Major C G J Edmondes. He was 41 years of age. He was the son of the late Archdeacon Charles Edmondes of St Davids and Mrs Edmondes of the Old Hall, Cowbridge. His widow is a sister of Mr J J D Nicholl of Merthyr Mawr.

Major Edmondes studied engineering in the Rhondda Valley. He lived in Colwinston. In 1889, he received a commission as lieutenant in the 5th Battalion Worcestershire Militia (Infantry) and joined the Glamorgan yeomanry as a captain on September 25th 1901, becoming a major in the November. After the death of Col. Wyndham Quin, he became second in command of the regiment and retained this position till his death.

He was a keen sportsman etc.
